I was pretty clear that it was 10 days and it was a probation sanction in my original email.
Consecutive just means in a row, as opposed to broken up into weekends.

Ty didn't issue any restrictions on good time eligibility and a review of the Statutory authority of the Sheriff shows that is no exception for this wording either.

So is this a jail policy or is there a statute than you can refer me to?

Mr. [REDACTED],

When you first emailed, I gave a general response regarding "good time" since there were no court orders, judgments, or paperwork to reference. Upon review of Loraine's judgment signed by the District Judge, it clearly states a sentence of "10 consecutive days." Unfortunately, due to this, she does not qualify for good time.

I don't know if there is some miscommunication or not - Someone told Loraine that she must spend all 10 days and that she's ineligible for the 2 for 1 good behavior credit (assuming she does indeed 'behave')

I've read the court order and I don't see anything in it that would preclude or prevent good behavior credit - would you please clarify? If she is ineligible, will you please cite the Texas Statute in reference to that?

2PM ? So she'd need to be there earlier then, correct?

I wasn't sure if the nurse left at say 5PM. I was concerned that if we came in there at 4:45PM, that the nurse wouldn't have 'time' to inspect them. That's why I was inquiring.

When she is brought in, the nurse can inspect the medications at that time.

Her beginning date is going to be December 12th by 5PM (Ty is expected to sign the order tomorrow) - what is the best way to have the nurse inspect Loraine's medications? As I stated before, some medications have to be administered multiple times a day and at "bedtime" - these are mostly psychiatric medications that she can't abruptly stop taking. We understand she won't be able to take her Pregabalin (controlled substance) or her THC oils for her neuropathy (this will make it difficult for her to walk without those medications).

Do you know if she is currently prescribed any narcotic medications? Narcotic medication is prohibited within the jail. The jail will not accept outside medications, unless inspected and verified by our nurse.

The 2 for 1 time can be given, however, it is based on the inmate's behavior.

Justin,

25th adult probation wants to sanction Loraine to 10 days in jail or extend her probation. We're leaning towards just doing the 10 days instead of extending probation for 3 months.

I have a couple of questions:

She has some severe medical issues including mental health issues. She is prescribed multiple medications some of which have to be administered 3 times a day plus an injectable due to severe vitamin deficiency.

Will she be able to have all of her medications? She is also prescribed a THC oil for her neuropathy in her feet, is that going to be a problem?

As long as she can receive her medication, the 10 day route is what she's going to choose.

Lastly, does sanctioned time qualify for the 2 for 1 time in jail? (I know this is something Curly routinely did)

Thank you for your time,

[REDACTED]

P.S. I hope you're enjoying your new role over there (giving you gray hair yet? lol)
